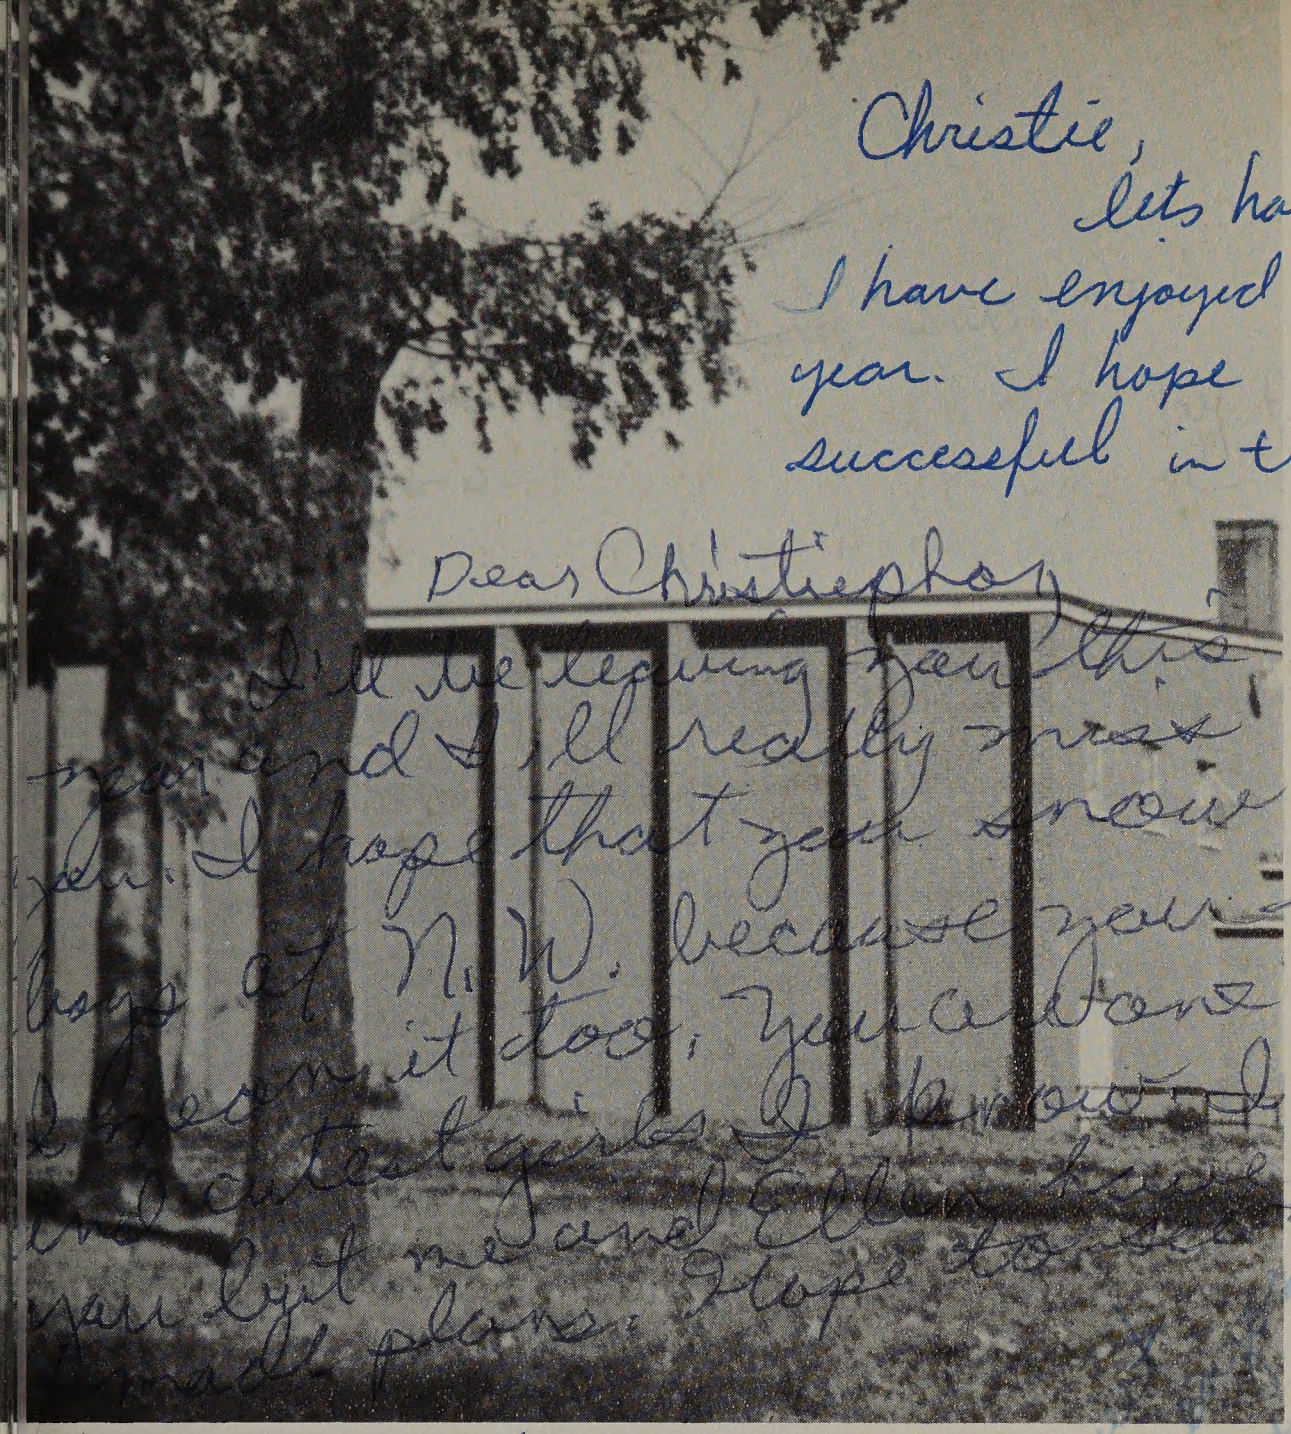
TOHARI

A school, like a song, must be made up of many parts. Each of these parts must work in harmony with the other to form the pleasing end-product of a fine song...or a fine school. Northwest has many parts that make up the school of which its students are justly proud.

Northwest combines the tones of the teacher, the student, and all who are associated with the school to form the harmonious result of an efficient and well-run organization.



Christie,
Lets have more parties -
I have enjoyed knowing you this year. I hope your just as successful in the following years.

Working together to achieve desirable results must inevitably require give and take on the part of both teacher and student. At Northwest High School, teacher and student work together with full assurance that both will benefit from their mutual efforts to raise the standard of education in these United States.

The melodies of learning and their accompanying harmonies of hard work are the predominant strains heard in the halls of Northwest, but the frivolous and light-hearted tunes are not lacking when the time and place make them suitable. The following pages record the learning, the activities, the fun, the good times—the whole song of life here at Northwest.

PHILIP LEON
Editor

Christie,
It's been fun working on the annual with you this year. I'm glad we're both going to be at Northwest next year. Have a good summer and see you this fall. God Bless you.
Love,
Sandy Moody

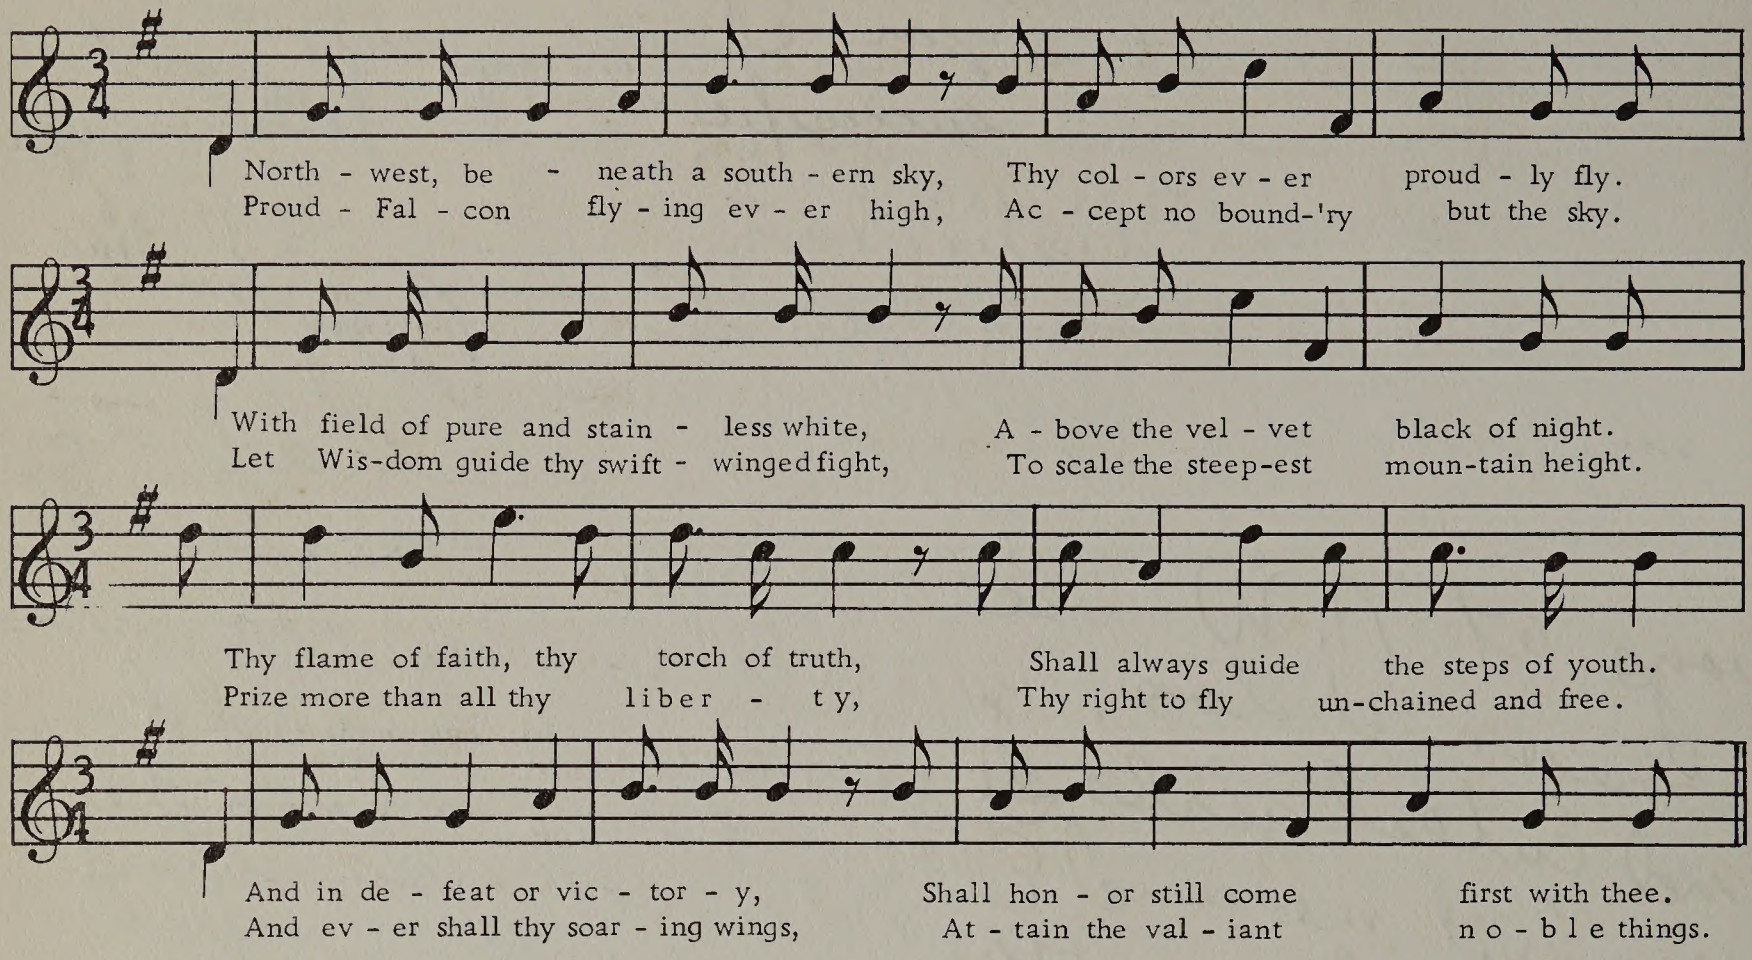
SONG OF THE FALCON

L. W. N.

Tune: O Tannenbaum



"Northwest beneath a southern sky..." So sing the students with fervent voices ringing. Each feels a thrill of devotion, excitement, and pride as he sings. The song is an expression of the philosophy of our school as it is lived by students, teachers, the entire personnel. Its lyrics are applicable to each phase of student life at Northwest. With this thought in mind, your editors have built this book—YOUR book—around your song.

Excerpts from the school song are used to introduce the sections and to establish the mood which prevails in this record. The "Song of the Falcon" is synonomous with Northwest school life; and when the school itself is no longer a tangible presence with you, and when memories of past events have grown dim, may The Song and The Book as you have them here stir the embers of memory and set the flame to burning brightly once more. And in the magic fire may you see again a proud falcon flying ever high.

Summer finds the lobby quiet and deserted. The noise of knowledge fills the halls in the fall.

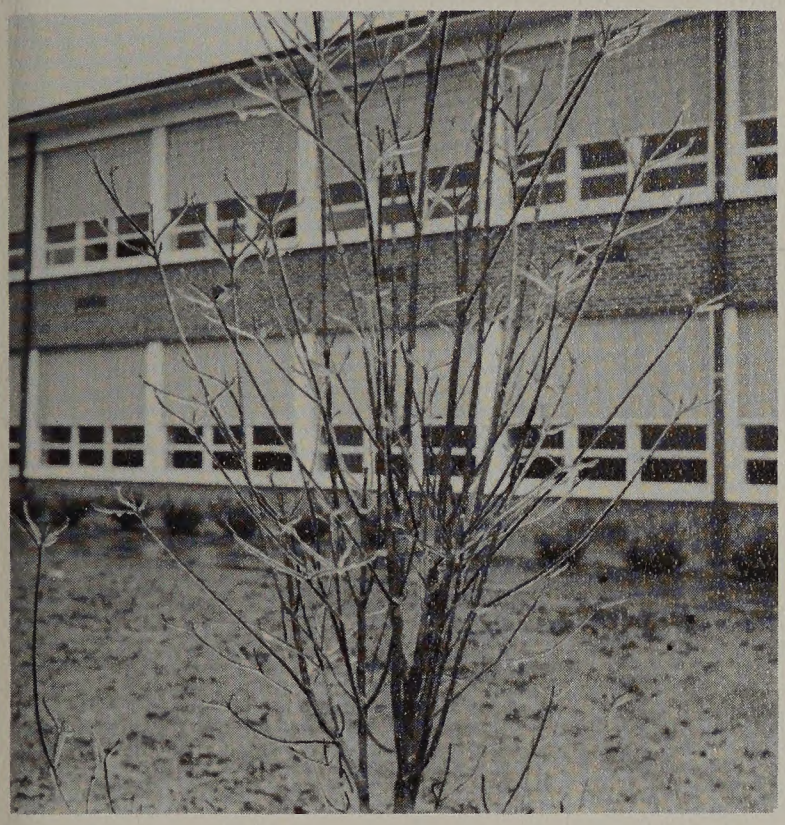
Scenes We Will Remember . . .

Northwest High School opened its doors to students for the first time in 1954. It was a small school then, and events happened in small ways. Since its inception, progress has been the keyword, and honor the guide in Northwest's journey to its present position of leadership in service to its community.

Northwest has grown rapidly and is no longer a small school. Since it opened as a school, additions to the plant itself have been constant; twelve new classrooms have been put into use, and four others are now under construction. An entire wing came into being with the new auditorium and its accompanying dressing rooms, storage rooms, and a large area for the music department. The cafeteria has been expanded to more than double its original size.

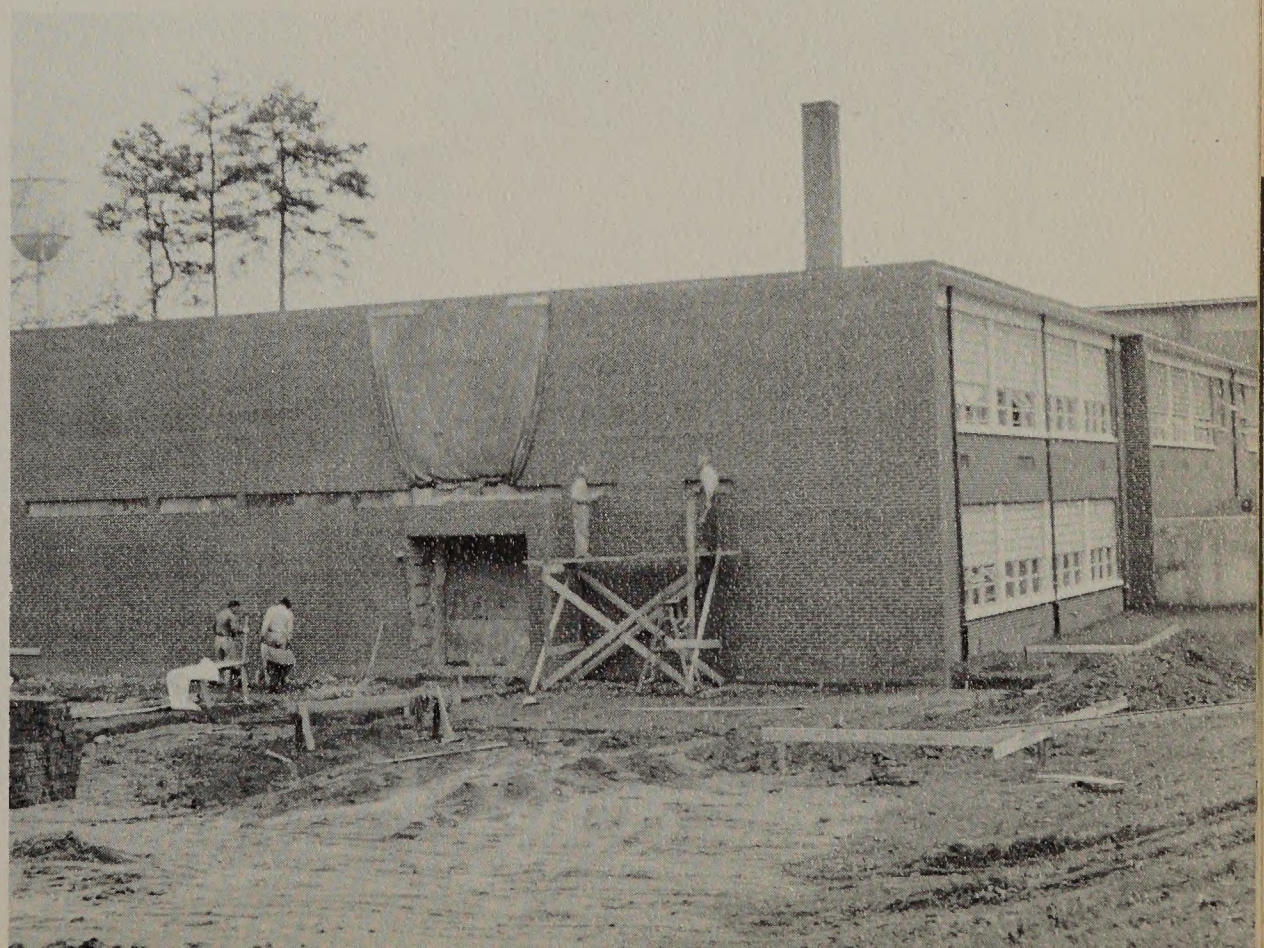
As our building has grown and our student body has advanced from four hundred to approximately a thousand, so have our achievements and our honors increased.

All this growth is recorded here in the 1962 issue of your yearbook.



Icicles coat the branches of a dogwood to make an unusual foreground for a view of the school.

Northwest adds its sixteenth classroom to be built since the first year of the school. This picture shows the initial stages of construction which will be completed by the end of the school year.



Things We Did . . .

Assembly programs, dances, ball games, and many other special events will remain with students long after more sedate and academic pursuits are forgotten. Memories are fashioned from events and people. Fun mingled with work results in memorable experiences. Glimpses of happenings and everyday occurrences at Northwest will recall the "things we did."

Judy Tudor, homecoming queen, "graciously" descends from her throne to greet her subjects.

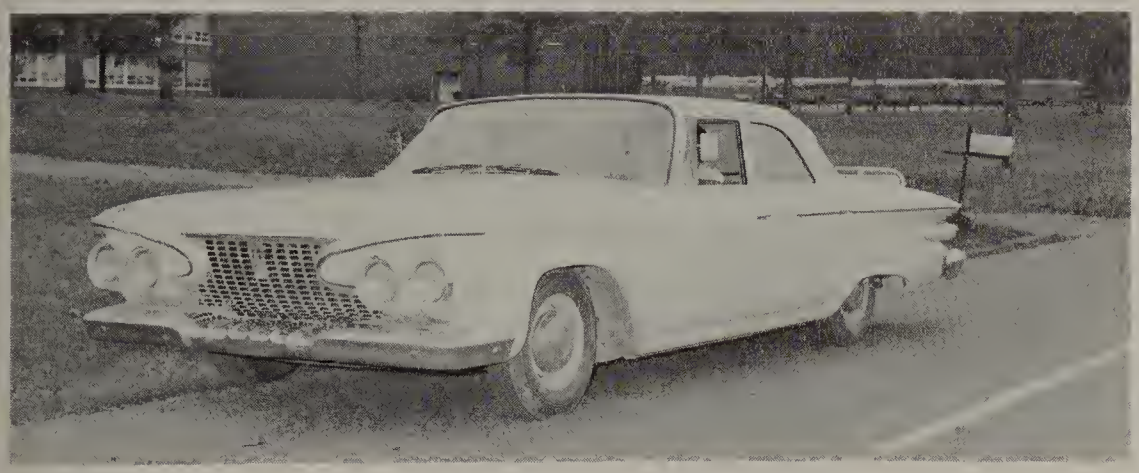
Football players assume the role of cheerleaders in this pep rally. The juniors on the varsity football squad offer their verbal and athletic talents as they attempt to arouse pep. . .and delight . . . in their classmates.

Avis Richardson swallowed an isotope for demonstration purposes during a special assembly program. Speaker from the Oak Ridge Research Center was Mr. J. Anderson. Many interesting demonstrations on radio-activity made this program memorable.

Student teachers invade Northwest throughout the year. Weapons for their invasion include assignments, projects, work, and more work. Entering school to begin a day of who-knows-what are Salem teachers Miss Elizabeth Hatley, in the English department, Miss Jane Thompson, economics, and Miss Fran Bell, social studies.

Eagerly anticipating the half-time ceremonies at the homecoming football game are these homecoming sponsors and their escorts. Each junior and senior member of the team chose a girl to be his sponsor in the activities.

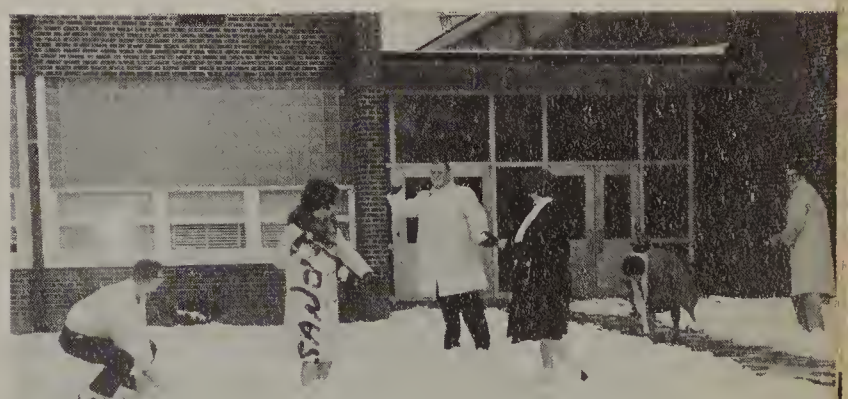
Leroy Matlock receives his tuberculosis test by the public health nurse. All freshmen were given the shot this year as in years past. Others might take it if they wished.



This Year

Calling all sophomores—driver-training is required. You will spend hours with an expert instructor and a textbook; more hours behind the wheel for practical instruction as you learn the fundamentals of safe driving and car operation.

Oops—watch that post! This group has stopped in front of the school for a laboratory lecture.



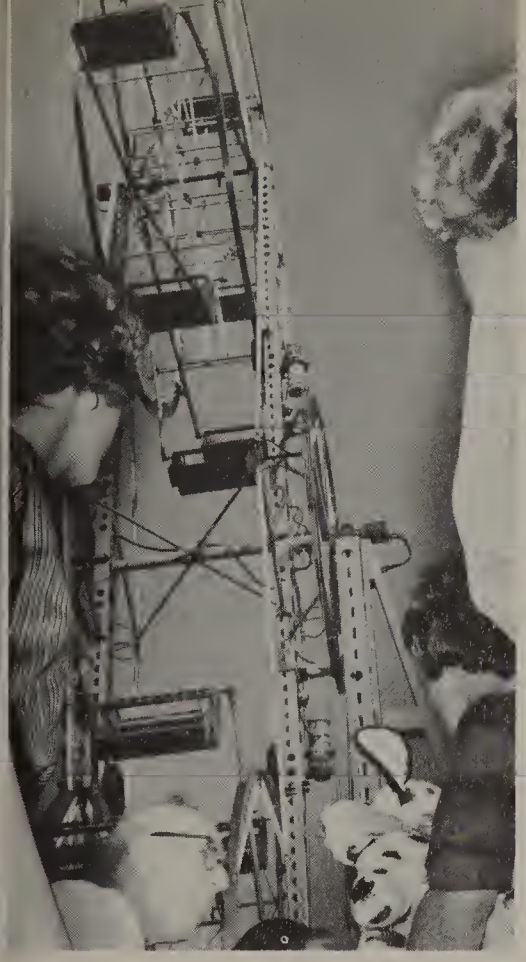
An advanced course in snowball making was given by several courageous students, no credit, of course. An unusually snowy winter afforded the students opportunities for sledding and other winter pastimes.

Want a new way to fix your hair? Sandy Whitley does it by electricity. The machine was used by Mr. Anderson for his demonstrations.

Students will remember the fashion show presented by the Home Economics department. Fashions which the girls made themselves were modeled by the producers. The program displayed skill in sewing which the girls had acquired through their home economics training. Joellen Stith and Larry Sheppard were co-emcees of the presentation.

Sandra Robb gives assistance to student hairdresser Paul Snell as he creates a "masterpiece" for Cecelia Kandzer. This act was one of the skits for the assembly program introducing the many clubs and organizations of the school.

Fashion, Fun, and Football Mark Early Fall.



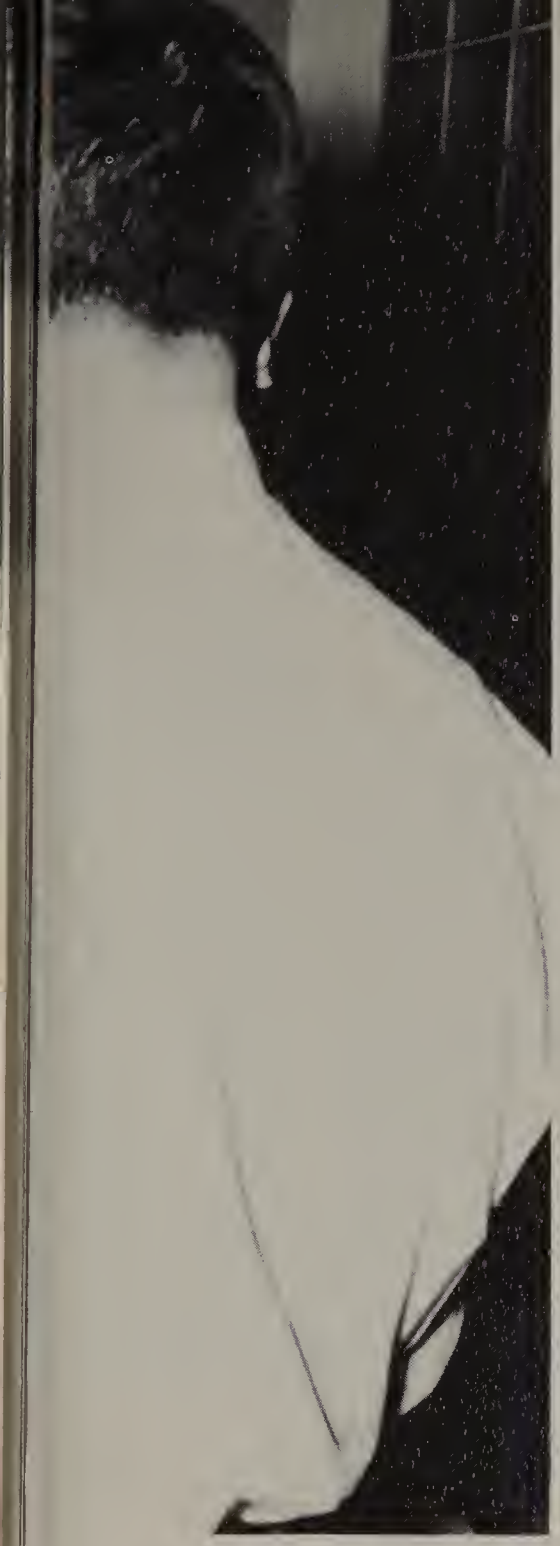
Each year when the fair comes to town, the students of Northwest join the throngs on the midway and in the exhibit halls. A three hour holiday is granted us for the purpose. Gwynne Myers, Susan Stewart, and Martha Chappell are dubious about the prospects of a ferris wheel ride.

A game well-played, a congratulatory word, a school worth playing for... these are memories to last forever. Eddie Yarbrough's football ability is recognized by Martha Chappell.

"Thy flame of faith, thy torch of truth

Shall always guide the steps of youth."

With nervous anticipation the faculty members prepare to sing at a P.T.A. meeting. Mr. Graham gives last-minute instructions backstage before the performance.

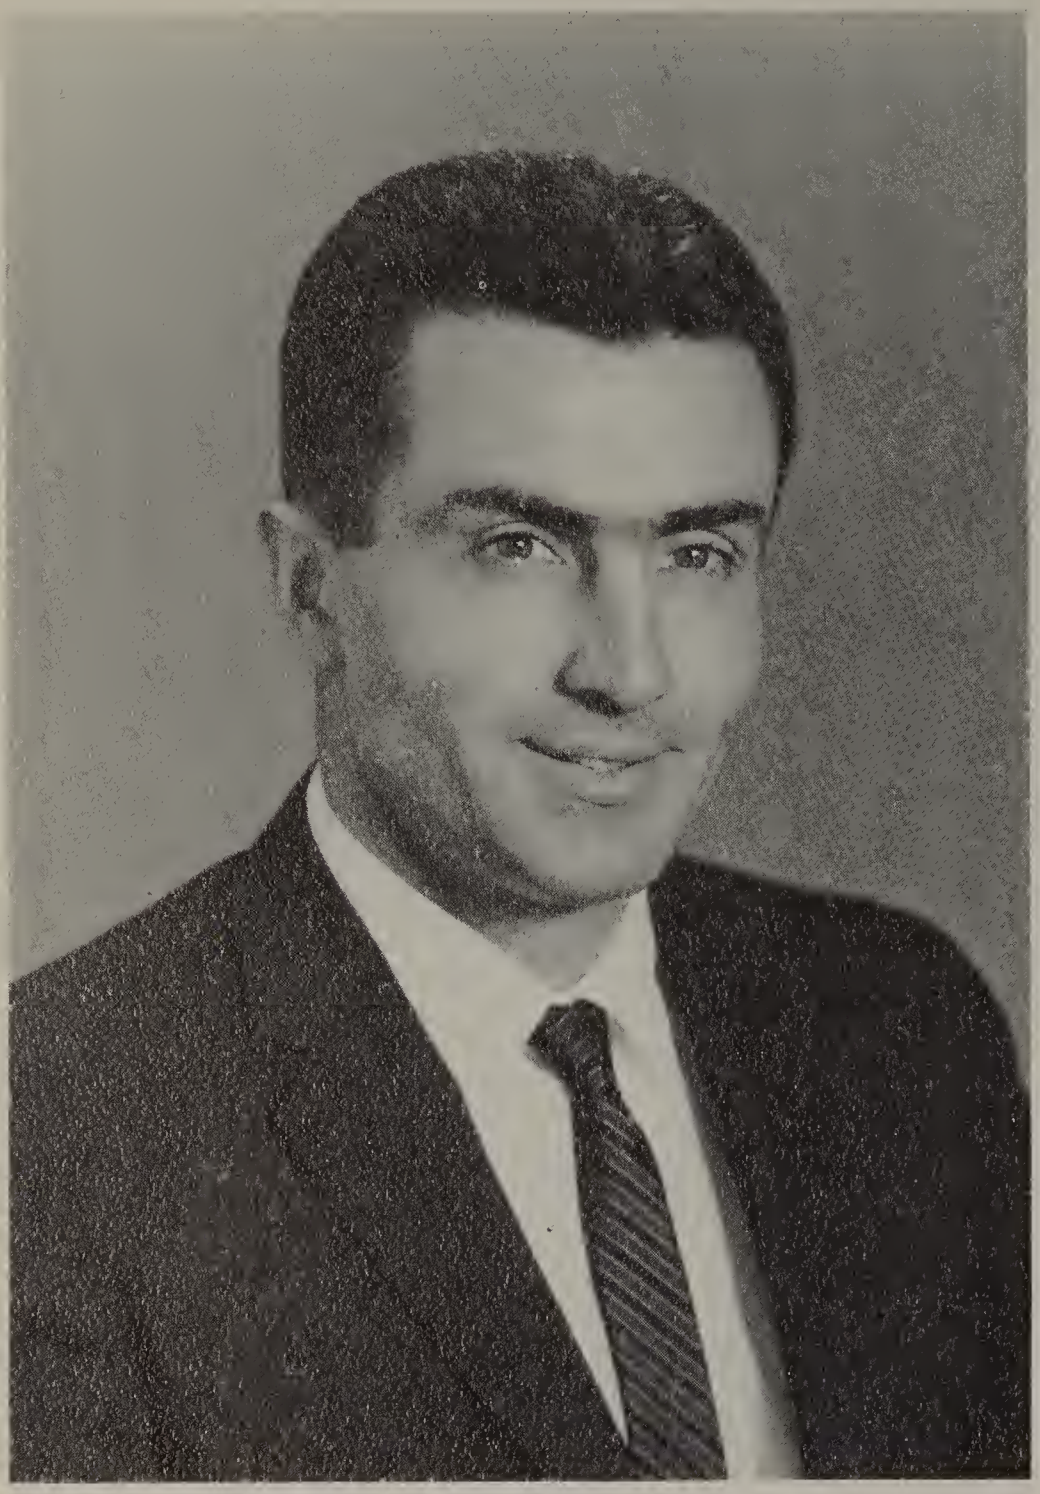


The teachers are the ones who "guide the steps of youth" at Northwest. Leading the young people of today and helping to mold their lives for the future is a tremendous task. These devoted instructors give many hours and much labor to the task of educating future leaders and followers. Northwest teachers have varied interests and personalities. These combined interests and backgrounds form influential factors in the training and preparation of the students at Northwest.

What are you interested in—history? music? science? All are offered at Northwest by well-qualified instructors. Holding high their "flame of faith and torch of truth," the teachers at Northwest are guiding the steps of youth with efficiency and unswerving dedication.

Mrs. Penner and Mrs. Benton, home economics teachers, prepare coffee and doughnuts for their colleagues at a faculty get-together.

FACULTY



MR. JULIAN GIBSON

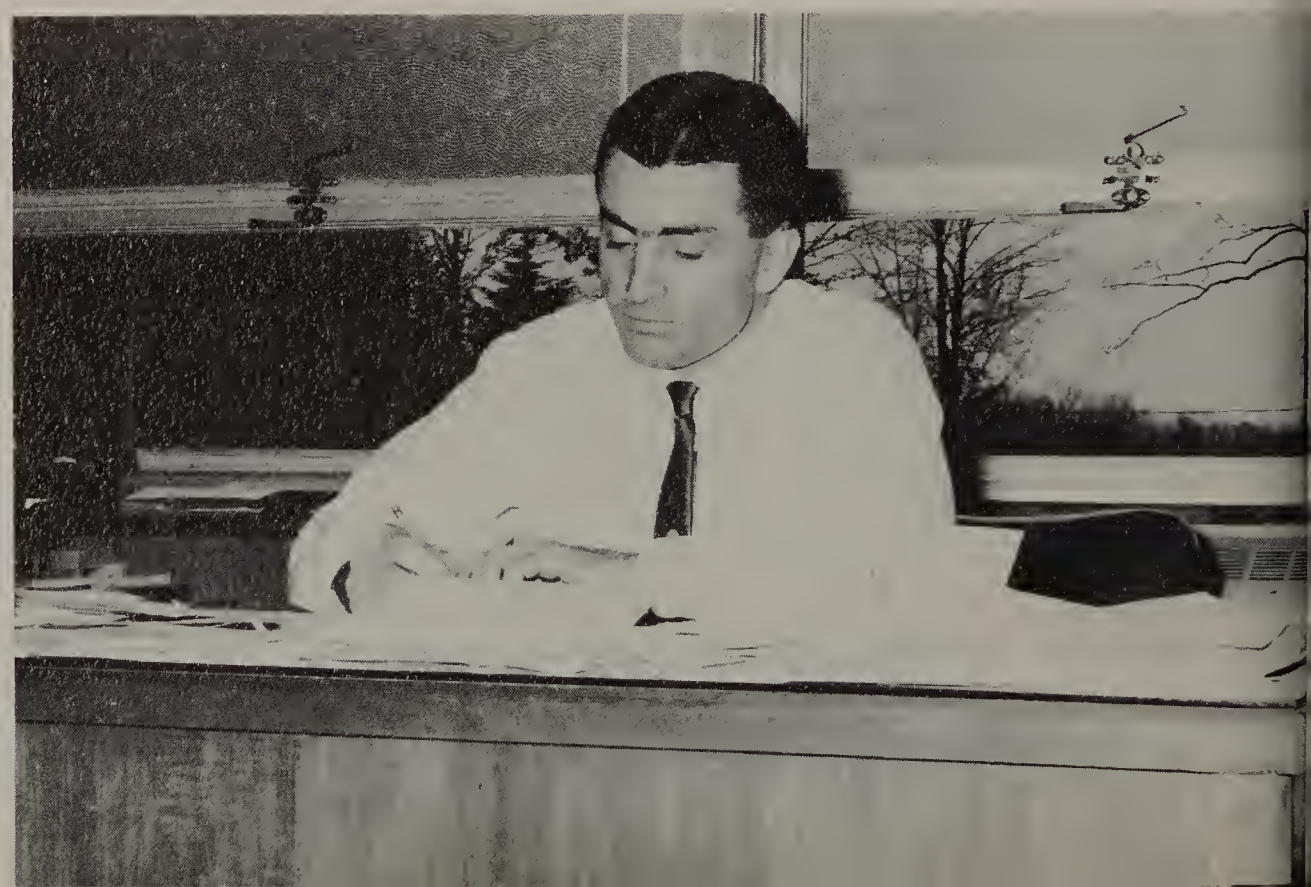
Principal

Mr. Julian Gibson, principal, has become a community symbol of diligence, integrity, and leadership. Mr. Gibson has been principal of Northwest since it opened in 1954. During that time he has given time and effort far beyond the call of duty to better the standards and operation of the school.

Mr. Gibson understands the thoughts and feelings of the youth of today and employs methods of arbitration between what the students want and what they must have. Because of his fairness and sympathy, the students hold their principal in high esteem.

Keeping a school functioning properly from day to day is no small job. Mr. Gibson can never relax his efforts to meet each problem; but at the close of each day he is able to say: "We have met the enemy and they are ours!"

Moreover, he enjoys it!



Each problem, large or small, is carefully considered by Mr. Gibson. He supervises the operation of every school-related matter. Nothing is left to chance.

Mr. Underwood is Guidance Counselor

Mr. Harry Underwood, guidance counselor, works with Mr. Gibson during the early part of the summer vacation, organizing the schedule of every student in the school. Mr. Underwood also works with the seniors in their correspondence with various colleges.

ACTIVITIES

". . . Thy colors ever proudly fly . . ."

During previous years clubs at Northwest have met once a month during school hours.

This year our clubs meet after school. When this play was set up the loud lamentation from the students deplored the change and predicted the end of clubs at Northwest. It has not worked that way. Clubs meet on the days of their choice and meet as often or as rarely as they please. Attendance is as good as it used to be under the old system and is often better. Membership is restricted in some of the clubs but most are free for the choosing.

The wide variety of offerings allows everybody to find some club that appeals to him.

The point system which is used here keeps all school offices distributed equally and prevents the overburdening of those people who are able to do anything and willing to try everything.

Herb Stolz and Frank King were willing to participate in many activities this year, but difficulties slowed them up. Throughout the athletic seasons many boys, and even girls, were seen hobbling from class to class on crutches.

One of the highlights of the year in student activities is the initiation of the Monogram Club. Inductees are required to wear unusual garbs for two days. During that period they perform many tasks and encounter some embarrassing situations. Penny races in which the boys push pennies with their noses over a carefully prescribed course this year provided much entertainment for the student spectators.

John Crews croons across the crowds. The Monogram Club initiation offers this scene of unusual student activity.

Officers: Tony Petree, President; Martha Boose, Vice President; Shelby Moss, Secretary. Seated, Penny Allen, Treasurer.

STUDENT COUNCIL . . .

Northwest's Student Council serves the school in many ways. The Council is made up of representatives elected from each homeroom. These representatives meet once each week to plan special events, organize projects, and discover methods to establish a close union of all parts of school life.

The Student Council is a medium through which the students can voice their opinions to the teachers and other administrators connected with the school. The Council established and maintains the Inter-Club Council at Northwest. The Inter-Club Council is made up of representatives from each club or organization in the school.

The Homecoming activities are the result of planning by the Student Council. All assembly programs and the daily morning devotions over the public address system are planned and executed by the Student Council.

Members monitor the East and West halls during the lunch periods, select a student-of-the-month, maintain hallway bulletin boards and posters, and operate the school store. The Student Council also gives an annual award to the student who is judged to have contributed most to the school during the year.

MISS JESSIE THRELFALL
Sponsor

During the homeroom period each morning, devotions are presented over the public address system. A Student Council project, representatives and other members of the homeroom conduct the devotions for one week. Each homeroom participates during the year.

Council President Tony Petree conducts a meeting in the band-room. Meetings are held there every Tuesday during the second lunch period.

Tony advises all clubs in this division. These boys will help plan and carry out the District Convention to be held in Winston-Salem during the month of March.

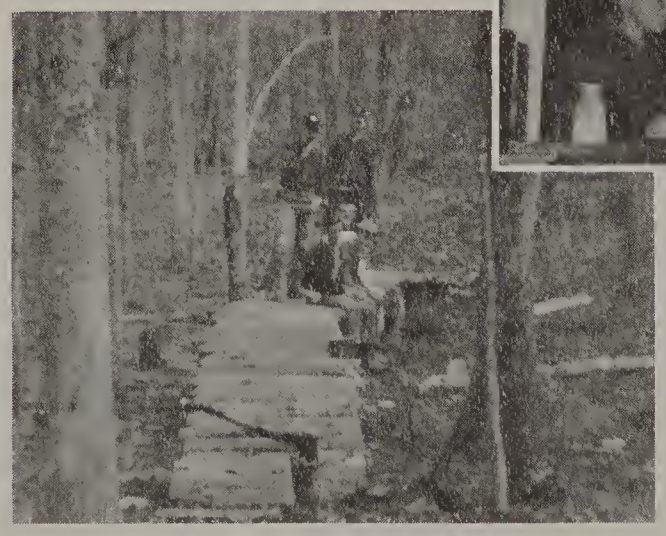
Leads School Service

At the Key Club Convention in Columbia, South Carolina, March 1961, the Northwest Key Club won honors in four of the five competitive events. In addition to this feat, two members of the Northwest club were elected to high positions in the district.

This year, the club has continued to serve the school and community by means of many projects. Operating the concession stand at the football and basketball games was the large project this year. Additional work on the Key Club Park was accomplished this year. The park is located behind the school and is to be used by community and church groups, and also by the science classes for their field trips.

Requirements for membership in the Key Club are: outstanding character, leadership ability, good citizenship, and good academic standing.



Key clubbers stop for a rest from their labors on the bridge in the Key Club park located behind the school.

Jimmy Wall serves the spectators from the Key Club concession stand located at the end of the football field. The stand was in operation throughout the football season.

Assisting the officers are the members of the advisory board. A member of each class represented in the club is elected to serve on the board. Judy Howard is the sophomore representative; Judy Davis, junior class; and Diane Kimel is the senior representative.

Proudly displaying the Anchor Club emblem are the officers: Lynn Young, Secretary; and Susan Furches, Vice President. Behind are Penny Allen, Treasurer; and Joellen Stith, President.

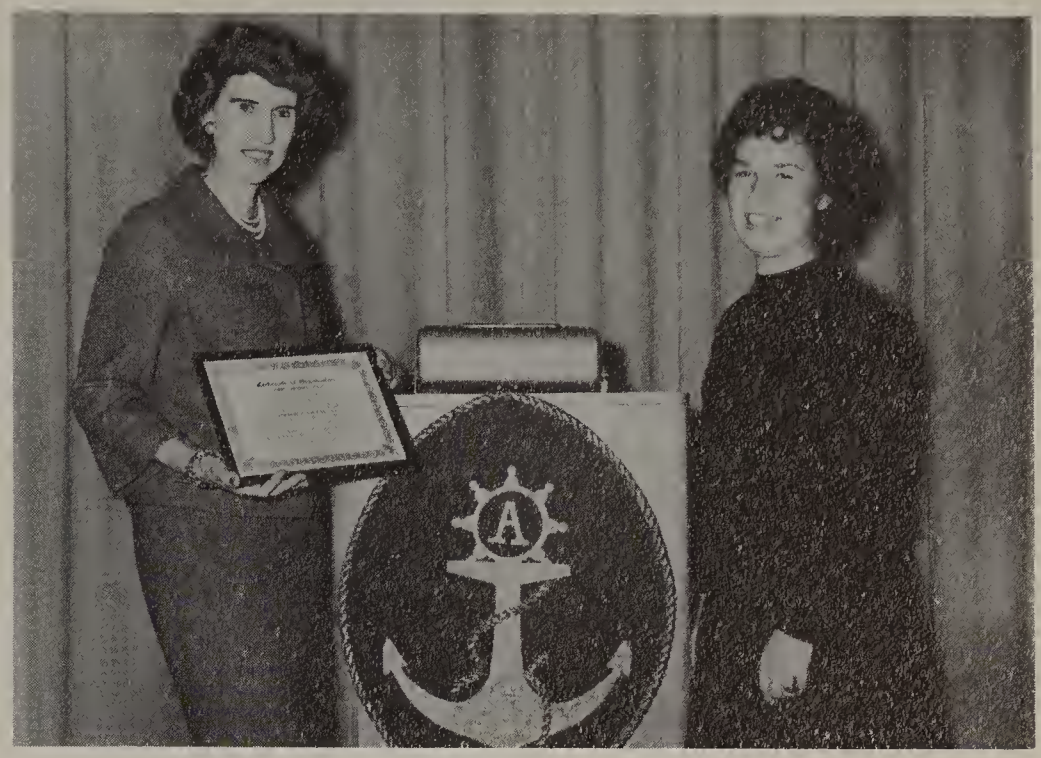
Completes First Year at Northwest

As it completes its first year at Northwest, the Anchor Club has assumed a prominent position among the clubs and organizations of the school. Recognizing the need for an organization which would honor outstanding girls in the school, the Pilot Club of Winston-Salem helped establish and now sponsors the Northwest Anchor Club.

The objectives of the Anchor Club are to develop initiative and leadership, to serve the school and community, and to prepare for useful adult citizenship.

As a service club, the group has undertaken several projects within the school and community. The Anchor clubbers assisted the Key Club boys in their concession stands during the football and basketball seasons.

A project of which the members are justly proud was the adoption of a family at Christmas. The family was visited by members of the club and given clothing and toys for the children and a bountiful supply of food.



At the officers' installation during the Anchor Club's assembly program, the club charter was presented to Joellen Stith, President, by Mrs. Evelyn Fletcher of the Pilot Club. The Pilot Club is the sponsoring organization of the Anchor Club.

Members of the National Honor Society strive to maintain the highest ideals of character, scholarship, leadership, and service. Students who have excelled in these areas of daily life are selected for membership in the society.

The members must maintain an "A" average in order to remain in the organization. A national organization sponsored by the Secondary School Principals, the National Honor Society has become one of the most prominent national high school groups.

Membership is eagerly sought at Northwest but is very difficult to attain. This is a service club dedicated to serving in the most unobtrusive manner possible. No recognition is sought for any service ever; no fanfare must accompany the achievements of the members as these achievements pertain to the society itself. Though quiet and reserve characterize the activities of the Northwest chapter of the National Honor Society, its influence is nonetheless great.

Those Who Have Excelled

MR. NIFONG

Athletes who meet specified requirements are eligible for membership in the Monogram Club. The club recognizes those athletes who qualify for a letter. The objectives are to promote good sportsmanship and to learn new athletic pastimes. The Monogram Club raises money to buy new sports equipment for the school through the selling of programs at all football and basketball games. The members of the Boys' Monogram Club receive a monogram jacket in their senior year of membership.

Members of the Bible Quiz Team must be a member of the Youth For Christ Club and attend the YFC rallies. Of course a thorough knowledge of the Bible is expected, but not required. There are eight members of the organization at Northwest this year. These people attend and participate in the Youth for Christ Rallies which are held weekly.

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA

Improving the schools grounds is listed as one of the major projects of the Future Farmers of America. The shrubbery which was planted last year was the work of the F.F.A. Several members of the club assist in directing cars at athletic events.

Several boys attend the F. F. A. camp each summer, and the club enters competitions with other clubs in the county in such events as land judging and home and farm management.

Sponsors of the club (at right) are Mr. Charles Jarvis and Mr. Charles Selle.

Compiling an annual is no easy task. There is a job to be done and the staff must do it. There is a deadline to be met, and the staff must meet it. Layouts, pictures, art, copy, advertisements...all must mingle harmoniously if a successful yearbook is to result.

Editor Philip Leon, in his second year of yearbook work, organized his staff and began work last summer. Business Manager Diane Kimel took charge of subscriptions for the book and gathered the advertisements. Rege Anders, Photographer, appeared unexpectedly by transfer from another school to record events on film.

Art Editor Ronald Crowder created the drawings which appear in the divider pages and in various other places throughout the book. Janet Wood, a junior editor, wrote much of the copy for the book and was in charge of the student section.

Victorious at times, second best at times, our teams still held high the value of h o n o r and fair play. Excellent coaching and Falcon determination carried our teams to heights never before attained at Northwest.

Echoing still are the cries of excitement and, perhaps, the moans of a last-minute disappointment. Win or lose, Falcons share the load and add one more note to the song of life.

Teaching in the classroom and on the athletic field, the coaches of Northwest instruct our athletes in the fine points of sports. The challenge of playing a sport—and playing it well—is offered by these men. No one enjoys losing in any competition. The desire and the ability to win is impressed upon the athletes at Northwest by their instructors. Much time and effort is spent in teaching the mechanics of teamwork, fair play, and the essentials for a winning season.

How to throw a pass, how to guard a shot, how to get a fast start... all of these skills are learned, not inherited. The dedication of our coaches to athletic achievement, physical well-being, and character development make our sports program truly valuable.

Completes Third Undefeated Season

For the third consecutive year, the Junior Varsity Football team has remained undefeated. Finishing the season with seven wins, no losses, and no ties, the Junior Falcons promise many winning seasons to come for the varsity squad. Most of the boys who participate in junior varsity football advance to the varsity in their later years of high school. Future varsity teams are built upon the experience which the boys receive on the junior varsity squad. The scores are a reflection of the determination and effort put forth by the participants on the team. In point totals for the season, Northwest J. Kernersville broke Northwest's record of victories by defeating her after a close and tough struggle. The heartbreaker recorded only one touchdown by Northwest. Guy Flynt's dead-eye found Eddie McKinney as a target and completed a pass for the touchdown.

What is football? Some boys may say it's taking hard knocks and getting bowled over like the player at the right. Others will say it's a precision game of planning, study, and practice. Practice such as Guy Flynt is doing at the left pays off during the crucial moments of a big game. Practice such as that done by Eddie McKinney and Dock Clement (below) is well worth the effort when the lights come on in the stadiums and the crowds cheer for action. Football is a game. It is played by boys who love it.

Realizing the value of practice, Eddie McKinney polishes his kicking. Dock Clement assists in the specialized procedure.

NORTHWEST vs. MADISON-MAYODAN

Recording the seventh victory of the season, Northwest completely outclasses the Madison-Mayodan team. Dock Clement and Eddie McKinney each scored two touchdowns to share honors for the victory.

NORTHWEST vs. SOUTHWEST

For the third straight year, Northwest has retained the Victory Bell which represents the rivalry between the two schools. Should Northwest ever lose a game to the Trojans of Southwest, that school will obtain possession of the bell. Eddie McKinney, Robert Flynt, Dock Clement, and Frank King, each had one touchdown. This was the eighth victory of the season and the first time in the history of the school that eight victories had been recorded in a football season.

NORTHWEST vs. HANES

The Falcons went down to their second defeat of the season to a strong Hanes team. The defeat by the Hanes Dragons, annually a challenging rival to the home team, completed a season of eight wins and two losses, of happy moments and sad ones.

Boys' varsity managers Jimmy Helsabeck and Gerald Banner spend their leisure hours in educational pursuits. The loser of the game has the privilege of scrubbing the floor.

Nancy Calloway is the girls' varsity manager and keeps the scores and records during the games. Larry Ferguson runs the clock at all home games for both varsity teams.

Ten wins and four losses marked a successful season by the Junior Varsity, promising winning seasons ahead for future varsity teams.

The junior varsity scrimmaged the Hi-Y basketball team for practice. A rebound receives the careful attention of the players.

Neil Shouse has been Northwest's ace pitcher since his sophomore year. He saw much action in his freshman year. The Sports Department of a local newspaper carried a feature on Neil, describing him as one of the best high school pitchers in the area.

BASEBALL TEAM Has Experienced Players.

Last year's baseball team made vast improvements over the results of former seasons. Experienced boys fulfilled the expectations of Coach Nifong and scored several resounding victories over the conference leaders. Six seniors on the squad all have invaluable experience and promise a good season this spring.

Champion TRACK TEAM

Gary Taylor, a junior, placed third in the low hurdles at the 1961 State Track Meet as a sophomore. Gary also participates in sprints and in the broad jump.

Northwest's crack relay team has a clear field as Gary Snyder passes the baton to Paul Snell at the Conference Meet. Northwest's relay team holds the conference record.

Dwight Morris, a junior, is a conference standout in the pole vault.

Cross-Country

Cross-country completed its second year at Northwest this year. Last year in the State Meet, the team placed seventh out of eighteen schools. This year, out of twenty schools, Northwest was sixth.

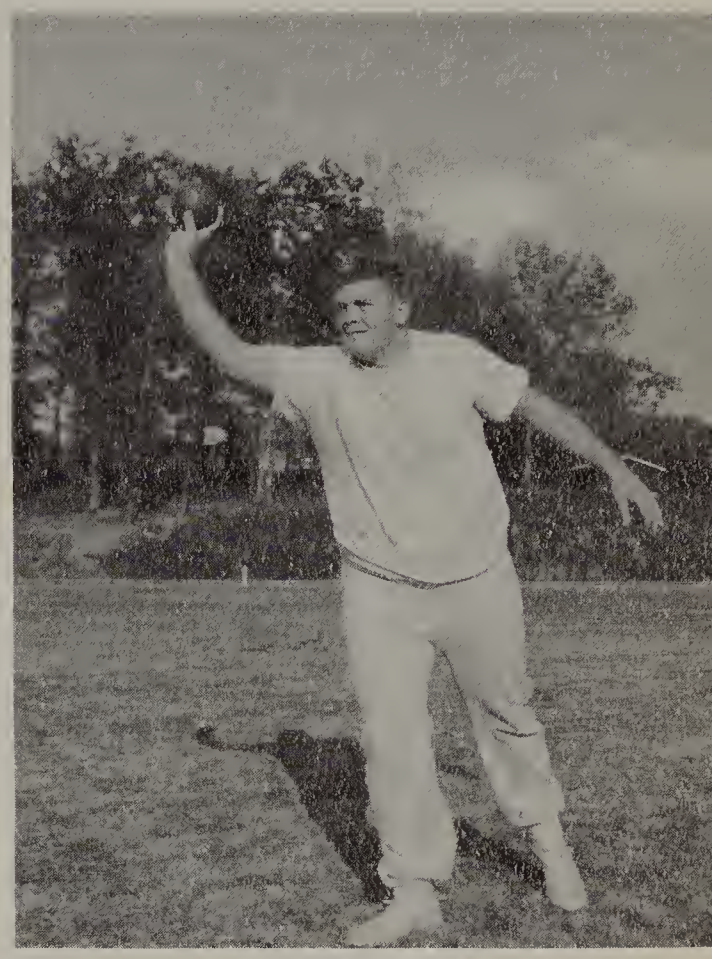
Sparks Athletic Program

In conference competition, the track team of Northwest has never been defeated. This is the fourth year in which the schools of the Forsyth Conference have taken active participation in track. Northwest has led the conference in track each of these years. Every conference record except two is held by a member of the Northwest team. At the State Track Meet last year, Milton Bauguess, a graduate of 1961, won the top honors in both the high and the low hurdles. Paul Snell, in his second year of state competition, placed second in the mile run, and Gary Taylor placed third in the low hurdles. Coach Larrimore anticipates that more records will be broken and more track enthusiasm will be generated this year.

Gary Snyder races across the finish line of the quarter-mile run at the Conference Meet.

This spring the track team will compete against these teams:

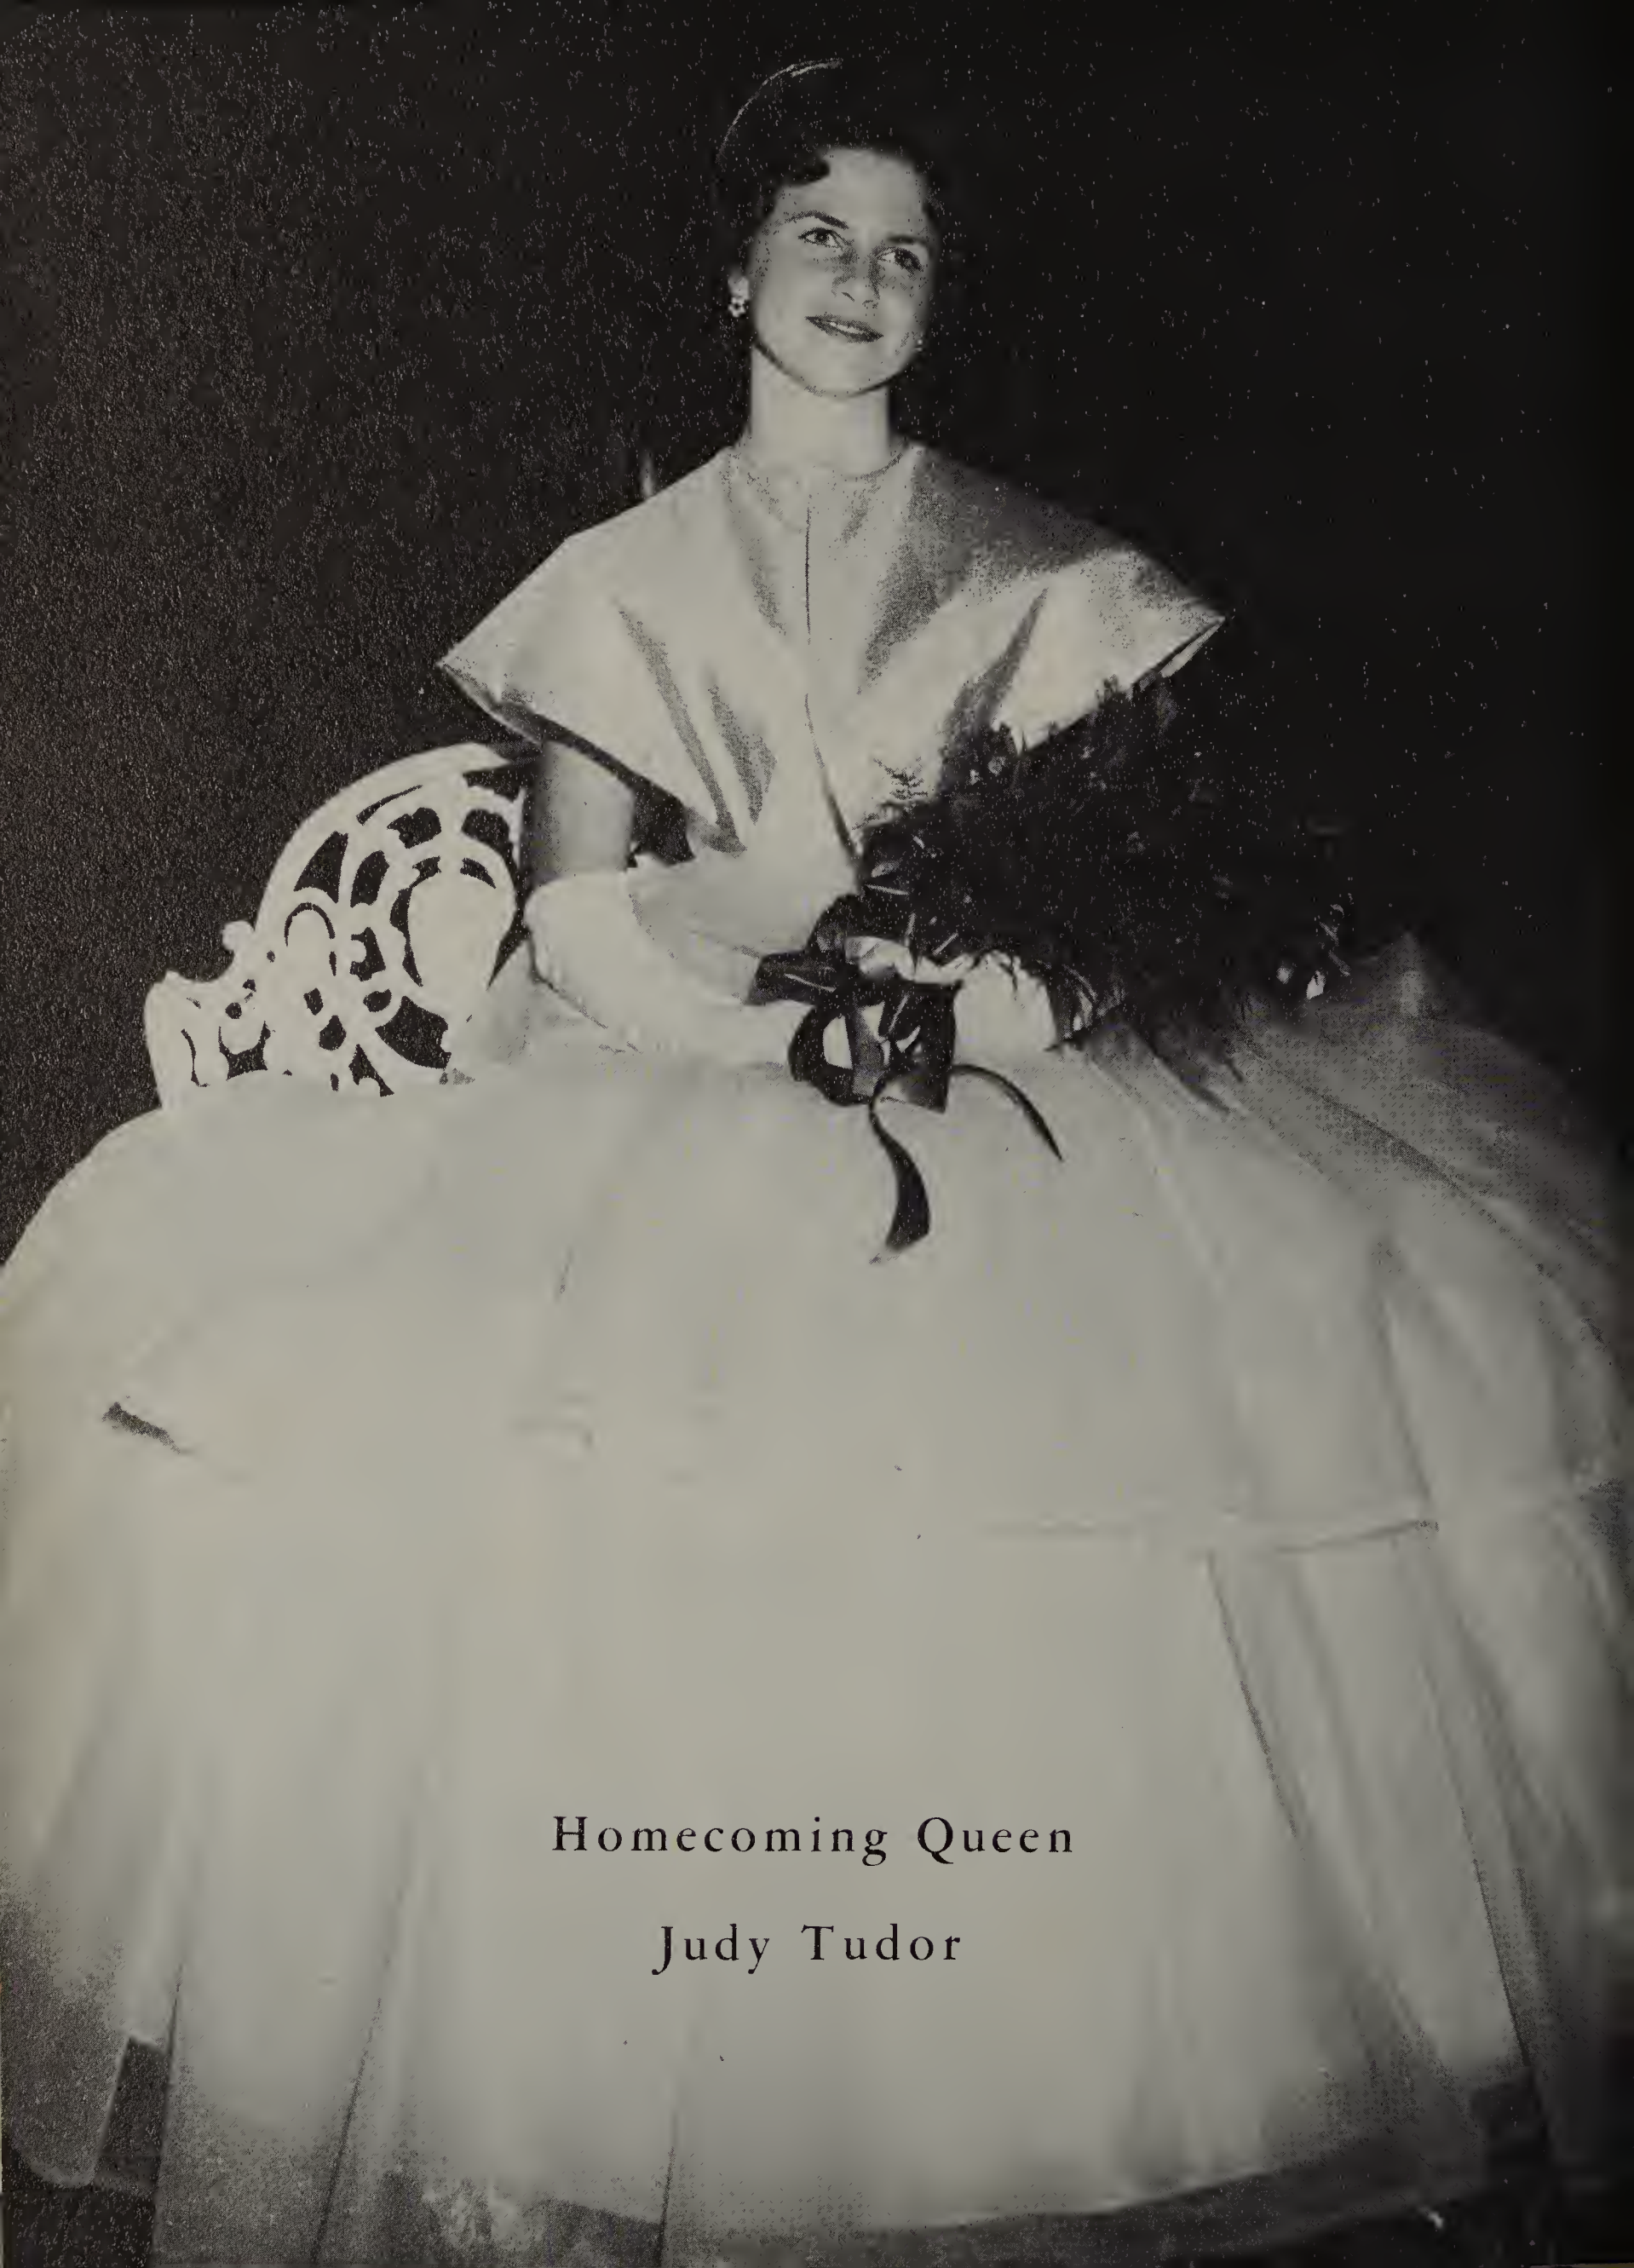
March	16	Northwest vs. Morehead
March	22	Northwest vs. Mineral Springs
March	30	Northwest vs. Glenn
April	13	Northwest vs. Southwest
April	20	Northwest vs. Madison-Mayodan
April	28	Conference Meet
May	4	Sectional Meet
May	11	State Meet



Jimmy Fearrington, conference champion in the shot and discus.

The mass of humanity at the left is the start of the State Cross Country Meet this year. The Northwest team is near the left margin, and they were in the middle of the group! One hundred and twenty boys were all scrambling for top honors. Paul Snell of Northwest emerged the victor.

Leading the distance races of the mile and the half-mile for the past three years were Paul Snell, Jimmy Wall, and Philip Leon.



Homecoming Queen

Judy Tudor

THE HOMECOMING COURT

Each year at Homecoming the junior and senior members of the football team choose girls to sponsor them in the Homecoming festivities. These sponsors and their escorts are introduced before the queen is announced.

Festivities of HOMECOMING Attract Crowds.

HOMECOMING! That's the time to see old friends, remember old times, and participate in other areas of enjoyment and entertainment. The homecoming football game draws a large crowd, and the activities of the evening are memorable. The selection of the Homecoming Queen is the highlight of the evening. The members of the football team select their choice by secret ballot. Five girls are chosen as finalists in the competition, and from these five emerges a new queen.

This year, Judy Tudor became the lucky girl as the loudspeaker blared her name over the field. Her attendants were Barbara Clement, Mary Meador, Vickey Cozart, and Diane Kimel.

Homecoming queens from past years returned to Northwest to witness the crowning of the new queen and, perhaps, to dream of their own moment of glory. The queens left to right are Kay Spencer ('56), escorted by Mr. Richard Dilworth; Susie Clodfelter ('57), escorted by Mr. Danny Clodfelter; Becky Gowens Mallins ('59), escorted by Mr. Larry Mallins; and Frances Tuttle Stanley ('61), escorted by Mr. Adrian Stanley.

HOMECOMING

Smartly dressed sponsors and escorts add to the homecoming glamour, but most of the attention is focused on the queen and her attendants. The attendants were: Vickey Cozart, Diane Kimel, Mary Meador, and Barbara Clement.

Queen Judy Tudor enjoys having her crown straightened by Guy Flynt, football standout.

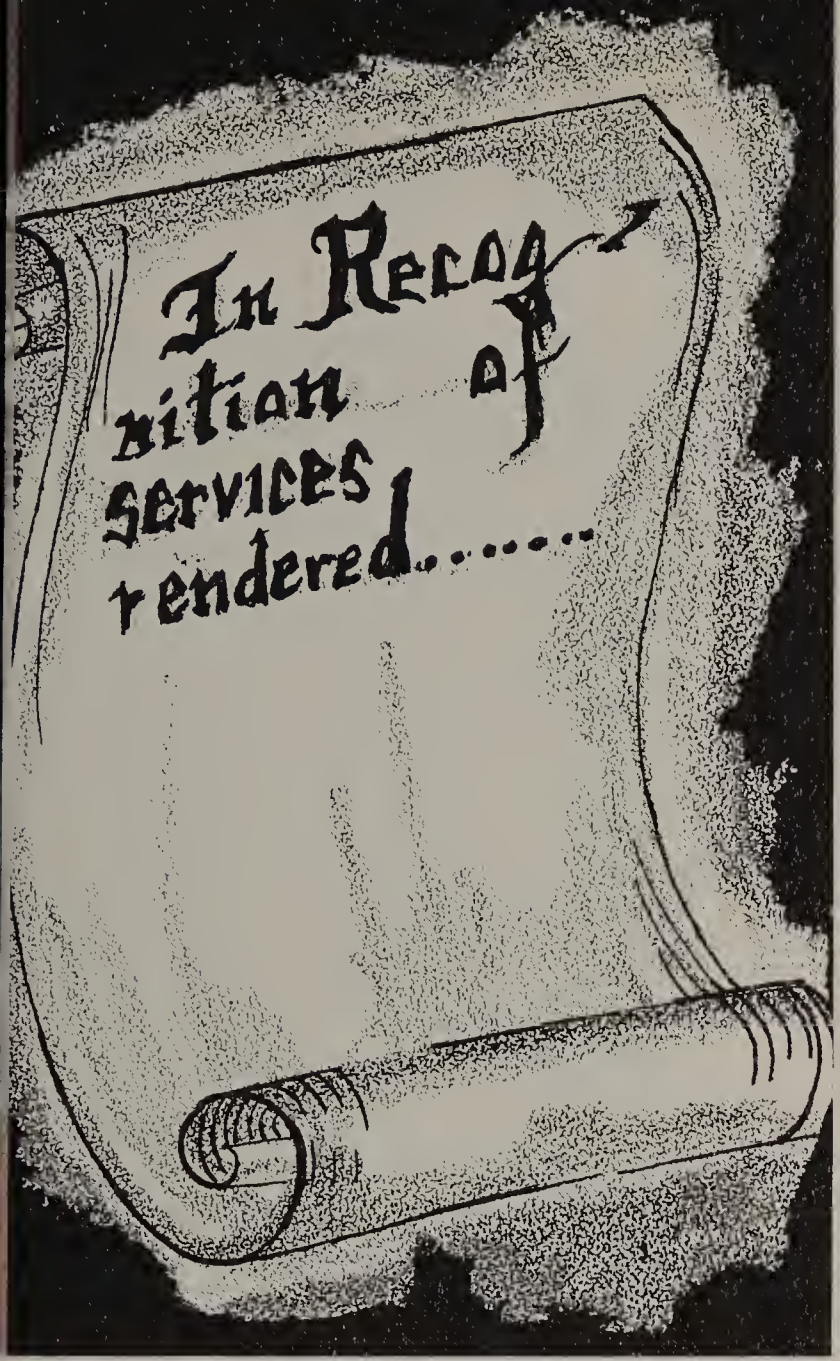
HONORS



Honor is defined as "respect; esteem; reverence." Also used in the definition of honor is "high rank or grades in school." In this section of TOHARI is presented those persons who have excelled at Northwest as citizens and as scholars.

"Honoring" and "recognizing" are terms not entirely dissimilar. The recognition given these people is earned, not bestowed. To gain honorable recognition, a person must perform some outstanding service or accomplish a deed which warrants approval from those around him.

This year the Falcon found few boundaries for its flight.

Barbara Coble was high salesman in the annual magazine sale in which all students of Northwest participate and which is our only money-raising campaign during the year. This year the school surpassed its goal of $9,000. Barbara, a freshman, is presented a Polaroid camera by Mr. Larrimore, chairman of the sale, for her efforts in contributing to the success of the project.

HONOR GRADUATES Lead

During three and a half years of high school, the Honor Graduates have maintained the highest scholastic averages among the seniors. Northwest uses the point system for determining the Honor Graduates. The points range in value from four points for an A, to one point for a D—of course no honor graduate ever got a D!

Having compiled the greatest number of points, these seniors merit the distinction of being named Honor Graduates.

BUSINESS HONOR SOCIETY

This club was organized at Northwest in 1961 and received its charter from the National Business Honor Society Headquarters in Dayton, Ohio. The purpose of this organization is to promote scholarship and to create and encourage interest in business education which will help members to grow ethically, intellectually, and socially.

The new members who will be inducted at the spring program are Susan Stewart, Sandra Young, Sandy Motsinger, Camilla Utt, Janice Raisner, and Gayle Wright. Below are: Sylvia Ring, Mrs. Newsom, Doris Smith, and Debra Tuttle.

Chosen by their classmates for their sincerity, oratorical ability, and high ideals, the Vesper Speakers will speak at devotional services on Sunday afternoon just prior to graduation exercises which occur a few days later.

Senior Vespers is a beautiful and inspiring service conducted entirely by members of the graduating class in place of the usual baccalaureate sermon. The program, taking place at twilight of a Sunday afternoon in spring, is widely attended and is as memorable an experience as graduation itself.

JUNIOR MARSHALS Assist

Junior Marshals are those juniors who have maintained the highest scholastic average in two and a half years of high school. The standings are determined by the point system on this basis: An 'A' counts 4 points; a 'B', 3 points; a 'C', 2 points; and a 'D', 1 point.

GIRLS' STATE DELEGATES

Rhonda Kay May and Judy Roush were Northwest's delegates to Girls' State. The girls were selected by the American Legion Auxiliary on the basis of good citizenship and academic standing. Girls' State is a mock legislature made up of representatives from communities all over the state which convenes and holds meetings similar to those of a regular state legislature. Interest in the state government is the primary objective of the Girls' State meetings.

Youth State Representatives Are Good Citizens

Boys' State operates on the same principles as the Girls' State. Wayne Burkette, a senior, was the representative from Northwest.

Northwest Students Win Community Honors

Susan Furches was the choice of the faculty to represent Northwest in the D. A. R. Good Citizen contest, which is sponsored locally by the Old North State Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Susan was chosen during her junior year because she had been outstanding in citizenship, service, patriotism, character, leadership, and scholarship during her high school career. She prepared an essay entitled "A Republic If You Can Keep It" and filled in a questionnaire.

The judges declared Susan the district winner. This year, as one of eight district winners, she will compete for the state award.

Pep rallies draw large crowds of students. A warm day offers the football field for an effective rally.

"Prize more than all thy liberty,

Thy right to fly, unchained and free."

"All work and no play..." The lobby is the scene for many events and student activities. Guy Flynt performs a highly skilled act to the glee of his fellow students.

Here are the students who compose Northwest High. These are the ones who participate in the activities, the clubs, the sports. With the pursuit of knowledge as their main objective, students return to Northwest each day to receive the benefits of experience gained from association with others, to receive the effects which memorable sights and events may have on them and to seek the wisdom which alone will allow them to "fly unchained and free."

These are the people. They sing the "Song of the Falcon," they love Northwest. They are Northwest.

OFFICE OF THE PRINCIPAL

To our Advertisers:

This year for the first time you, our advertisers, come only from the immediate school community without reaching into the larger general community of the entire city of Winston-Salem.

Teen agers control a considerable segment of the buying power of the families in these United States. Moreover, teen agers grow up to be adults who control a much larger segment of the buying power. We expect this yearbook to last at least a hundred years and to serve all the time to remind readers of your generosity and your interest. We sincerely believe that these advertisements represent, also, a sound and immediately practical investment on your part.

You who are the civic-minded leaders, the business men and women of this area, have joined hands with us in creating a yearbook which will stand as a lasting materialization of a happy, prosperous, fruitful year. We, the students, are proud to be a part of a team with you. We shall try to make you always proud that you have chosen to be a part of a team with us.

The Tohari staff and, indeed, all the students at Northwest and their teachers are grateful for the kindness, the generosity, the interest represented by these pages.
